A NEWSLETTER FROM THE U.S. COPYRIGHT OFFICE LICENSING SECTION

Chief's Note

TRACIE COLEMAN

In 2023, the Licensing Section continued to uphold its responsibility of administering the various royalty and non-royalty statutory licenses to support the mission of the section and Copyright Office.

In addition to providing the same level of service to our stakeholders, I am pleased to announce some exciting accomplishments in 2023:

- We celebrated our forty-fifth anniversary.
- We added a new accounting period to our website's repository of post-examination paper and electronic statements of account (SOAs).
- We made significant strides in developing the licensing module for the new Electronic Copyright System (ECS).

I am also pleased to announce that, for the sixth consecutive year, the section received an unmodified or "clean" audit opinion of the statutory licensing fiduciary asset financial statements.

Looking ahead to 2024, Licensing plans to

- modernize the examination and royalty investment and accounting processes as part of the development of the ECS licensing module;
- complete the design for and implement the ECS licensing module to process and examine statements of account;
- continue providing online access to examined paper and electronic SOAs through the Copyright.gov/Licensing website.

As the Licensing Section finishes out the year, we want to thank you for your continued support.

On behalf of the entire Licensing Section, we wish you a safe and healthy holiday season, filled with peace and joy in the New Year. We look forward to continuing our outstanding service in year forty-six and beyond!

On September 26, the Copyright Office published a supplemental notice of proposed rulemaking modifying an earlier proposed rule regarding the applicability of the derivative works exception to termination rights under the Copyright Act to the statutory blanket mechanical license established under the Music Modernization Act. The supplemental notice also expands the proposed rule's scope to address matters relevant to identifying the proper payee to whom the mechanical licensing collective must distribute royalties. Copyright Office Issues Interpretive Rule Regarding Fees for Late Royalty Payments Under the Music Modernization Act's Blanket Mechanical License

On September 5, the Copyright Office issued an interpretive rule regarding the Music Modernization Act's due date for royalty payments as it relates to late fees under the blanket statutory mechanical license. In February 2023, following requests from interested parties, the Office published a notification of inquiry soliciting public comments regarding when royalty payments should be considered late, thus triggering late fees assessments. Interested parties were in disagreement about whether the Office's regulations governing the reporting by digital music providers under the Music Modernization Act's blanket license affected the Act's due date provisions.

Having carefully considered the statutory text, legislative history, and public comments, the Office concluded that the statute's due date provisions are unambiguous. The Office is not issuing regulations on this topic and is terminating its related notification of inquiry. More information can be found here.
